RE: Centennial Celebration: 1906 ~ 2006

Dear Members and Honorees:

One hundred years ago, many historic events occurred. President Roosevelt sailed to the Panama Canal Zone. It was the first time a U.S. president traveled outside the country while in office. Reginald Fessenden used his high-frequency alternator to transmit music and voice via radio waves to ships at sea that he had equipped with receivers. The transmission is early AM radio. Enrico Forlanini developed the hydrofoil ship, which used wing-like foils to lift the main hull out of the water, reducing drag. It reached a top speed of 42.5 miles per hour.

Among all the great achievements in our country, I can think of none better for our community than the creation of the Buckeye Lake Yacht Club in the year 1906. Each time I stand on the club grounds or walk inside the clubhouse, I am amazed. I can always sense the historic value and meaning the Yacht Club has for Buckeye Lake. Long honored traditions and great respect are just a few of the qualities I always see.

It is with great pleasure that I have the opportunity to write to you during your year of centennial celebration. I congratulate you on remaining a focal point to the lake and the community.

Respectfully,

Tim Wahn

Dear Officers and Members of the Buckeye Lake Yacht Club,

On behalf of the Village of Buckeye Lake I would like to extend my congratulations on reaching the 100-year milestone. This is certainly an accomplishment worth recognizing especially in light of the role the Buckeye Lake Yacht Club has played in the history of the region.

Over the past 100 years the Buckeye Lake Yacht Club has been a beacon of light in an area that has seen a variety of ups and downs, opening and closings, and most recently a renaissance of activity and development.

The Yacht Club has at many times taken a leading role and at other times a supportive role in helping the region improve itself. Perhaps even more importantly and staying true to the original objectives the Yacht Club has always provided ample opportunities for those interested in boating and socializing in the Buckeye Lake region.

On a personal note, having been a Jr. Member, Active Member and Past Commodore, the Yacht Club has always had a special place in my heart. I am certain that many other families will get the same enjoyment over the next one hundred years that my family and I have experienced during part of the first century of the BLYC.

The Village of Buckeye Lake is fortunate to have the Buckeye Lake Yacht Club as a neighbor.

Sincerely,

Mayor Frank Foster
